For over 75 years, people have traveled from far and wide to gun waterfowl in the swamps and impoundments of mainland Hyde County, NC and on the shoals of the Pamlico Sound. With over 200,000 waterfowl visiting the area annually, it comes as little surprise that this has become such a well known destination. During the winter months when most coastal tourism locations are winding down for the season, this area becomes alive with hunters.

Chock full of waterfowling heritage that dates back to the pre-market gunning days, this area has a history of producing some of the best waterfowl hunting opportunities anywhere in the country. From hunting the tundra swan and Canada geese in fields and impoundments, to puddle ducks in flooded grain fields and impoundments and along the Outer Banks, local guides and residents have great success hunting ducks, geese, swan, or any waterfowl combination that appeals to you.
